TROUBLE ON THE BORDERLINE

WILMINGTON EDGES OUT BEDFORD 6-0

by Philip Tupper

Wilmington High's Wildcats, led by Don Weed, who scored the only touchdown of the game, edged out Bedford in a real thriller, 6 to 0. The contest was well fought on both sides of the field with Wilmington's Wildcats ahead at the final whistle. The only touchdown was scored by Don Weed on a beautiful lead pass by Geo. Munroe and Weed raced into the end zone from the 30-yard line.

This is Wilmington's second win in a row, giving them a 2-1 season record. The game was a see-saw battle with both teams marching down the field only to be stopped short of a touchdown by the stubborn defensive units of both teams.

Wilmington played a good game even though Rooney, their star halfback, was stopped by the Bedford defense. John Amaro and Don Weed did all the running for Wilmington. Wilmington is improving with each game.

so Dracut had better watch out next week.

Don Weed, halfback for Wilmington High football team, was the winner of the weekly Virginia Parker Chicken Dinner.

TOWN CLERK WELCOMES FIRST GRANDCHILD

Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Russell of Charleston, South Carolina, announce the birth of a daughter, Lauren Carole, on Oct. 8.

Grandparents are Mrs. Esther L. Russell of Wildwood St., and Mr. and Mrs. Warren J. Morley of North Andover.

Border Ave., a short street near the North Woburn line recently became the center of a controversy between a resident of the street, Harold McKelvey, and the owners of a junk yard located in Woburn, Border Ave., is the only street leading to the yard which is passable year round.

Mr. McKelvey appeared before the Selectmen some months ago to protest the business locating where it has, but it was over the town line and out of the jurisdiction of the Board. At the time, however, the Selectmen promised Mr. McKelvey that they would do something to halt the flow of trucks which he claimed were using Border Ave., day and night. The Selectmen offered as a suggestion the placing of a "No Heavy Trucking" sign at the entrance of the street and this plan was carried out a week ago Saturday.

The following Monday, the DeTucci brothers operators of the yard appeared before the Selectmen to find out why the sign had been placed there and if there was any way open to them to again legally use the road. They stated that they were only bringing two or so truckloads of material a day down the street. They also maintained that the other street that Mr. McKelvey had suggested they use Breed Ave., Woburn was impassable in any kind of wet weather. The Selectmen promised to investigate and see if a satisfactory arrangement for both parties could be reached.

Selectman Frank Hagerty and Donald Kidder visited the area last Saturday, and reported Monday, that they felt a restricted use of the road would not aggravate any abutors to Border Ave.

However, Mr. McKelvey, who met with the members of the Board Monday, said that he felt that the trucks were passing over his land at one point at the end of Border Ave., where it turns into Inglo Ave. After check-

WILMINGTON COMMUNITY FUND AIDS THOSE IN NEED

This week Bob Winchell, of Lawrence Street, Paul Mitchell of Lockwood Road, Frank Hagerty, of Hathaway Road, and Leo McVickers of Wightman Road, agreed to head up the four Districts of the town for donations to the Community Fund. Mrs. Drew, and Fred Sedden of Oakdale Road, are visiting the different business establishments for donations.

James Shine will be Marshall of the parade scheduled for our Drive, which incidentally we shall have more to report on next week, but as of this moment we can say we knew it will be an outstanding event.

Probably the greatest single benefit of the Wilmington Community Fund is the immediate relief to people in time of need, and no one knows who will be next to meet misfortune. The Fund can be looked upon as an insurance policy because so many people have sought assistance because they have contributed and are therefore members. The Emergency Relief Committee is made up of fellow townspeople who have a personal interest in time of disaster or need, and act immediately. The following is a letter by Mrs. Marion Boylen, who is noted for her background of assistance to other people.

The Emergency Relief Committee is a very vital part of your Wilmington Community Fund. It is composed of three members appointed from the Board of Directors of the General Fund. At present they are: Anna Low, Frank Leavitt, and Marion Boylen.

Perhaps you are not familiar with the work of this Committee, but those who have seen the results know what great relief this fund gives those in distress. For, at a time when they have needed it most, they have received direct, "on the spot" relief.

It is a helping hand extended in a friendly manner to help over a rough spot that any of us, at any time, might encounter, a fire, illness, or an accident, etc. A food order, fuel, warm clothing or medicine at the right moment is extremely important; and, the comparatively small amount spent relieves a lot of misery and gives a person a tremendous lift.

Your dollars have also bought wheel chairs and hospital beds that are in continuous use. You bought Christmas baskets and 132 grateful neighbors had a happier holiday. We try to spend the money exactly the way you would spend it if you knew the circumstances. Remember no salary is paid to any member of the Local Community Fund. They give gladly of their time and effort in order to help the Community. Every penny you donate is spent in your town. Be a good neighbor and give to build a better community.

Sincerely,
Marion Boylen, Chairman.

DON'T FORGET THAT STICKER

Now is the time to be thinking about your automobile inspection sticker. There are only two weeks left in which to obtain yours. It would take much less time and aggravation to drive in and get it now than on October 31.

MALICIOUS DAMAGE

Even a poor old pumpkin isn't safe these days. At approximately 4:45 p.m. on October 10, Vinal Lewis of Church St., reported to police that boys had taken his pumpkin from his front steps and broken it in the street. Officer Shepherd went to the scene and spoke to the boys responsible for the act.

VANDALISM ON LAWRENCE STREET

At 12:57 p.m. on October 10, Arthur Milly, owner of a new construction on Lawrence St., reported to police that he discovered a stone had been thrown through his picture window. The loss was estimated at approximately $75.00. Sgt. Imbimbo is investigating the incident.

FENDER GUARDS STOLEN

Harold Smith of Woburn St., reported to police at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 7 that two rear fender guards were stolen from a 1957 Mercury while it was parked in his yard. Officer Fuller is investigating the incident.

TROUBLE ON THE BORDER

ing with street plans, the Board found that this was unlikely, and that even if the disputed right of way was only a paper street, it still was impossible to bar traffic if that bar constituted a hardship.

Alderman Edward App of Woburn, appeared to state the case of the DeTucci brothers. He said that they had applied for a third class license and under the provisions of granting the license, the city could regulate their trucking to some extent, as well as the operation of the road. He agreed to see that any restrictions on speed and number of loads a day would be incorporated into their license, if that would permit them the use of the road.

At one point Frank Hagerty asked Mr. McKelvey, "If he is restricted to two loads, to be carried in the day-time only, will it still bother you?" Mr. McKelvey replied, "Yes, it will cause me a hardship, endanger my property and force me to sell my property."

The Selectman finally agreed to permit the use of the road for two loads a day, at a restricted speed, and asked that the trucks use the Breed Ave. approach whenever possible.

Flew Flag First:

The town of Colrain, Massachusetts, believed to be named after Irish poet Lord Colrain, boasts that its school was the first in the United States to fly the American Flag, the Massachusetts Department of Commerce reports.

Fossil Footprints:

Fossil footprints, relics of the pre-historic era when dinosaurs roamed the land, have been discovered in several sections of Gill, Massachusetts, the Massachusetts Department of Commerce reports.

STILL STANDS

A weathervane imported from England more than 200 years ago still stands atop the spire of the First Congregational Church of Hadley, Massachusetts, according to the Massachusetts Department of Commerce.

WELL DIVERSIFIED

Pioneer Valley, western Massachusetts, well diversified industrially, reports that 60 percent of the jobs in that area are in manufacturing, according to the Massachusetts Department of Commerce.

Pocket-size television cameras and smaller, better radio receivers for everybody are nearer to mass production as the result of new transistor discoveries by physicists at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory, Silver Spring, Md.

U.S. Navy builders working on the air-sea base being developed at Rota, Spain, found that oxen were more efficient in hauling heavy sheet steel fuel tank sections through mud and sand than were man-made vehicles.

Picturesque Name:

The town of Bernardston, Massachusetts, famed for its antiques, was once known as "Falls Fight Township" in memory of a war between early settlers and Indians, the Massachusetts Department of Commerce states.

As My Garden Sleeps

By Mari Gold

This past week, the weather has been just made to order for working outdoors and if you keep putting off planting bulbs, you'll be sorry next spring when your neighbors have a garden full of spring flowers.

Some folks like to naturalize their bulb plantings. If you are one of these people, be certain to choose a protected spot where the wind will not strike and where the grass will not need be cut in the early spring.

Bulbs planted in part of a stone wall, among evergreens or along fences make a nice showing. A little time and money spent this fall will pay off a thousand fold next spring, when the blossoms come. When purchasing bulbs, make sure they are good ones, firm and plump and a fair size. If they are small, no flower will be produced during the current season.

Tulips may be planted until the ground freezes, but all other bulbs should be planted this month. If you plant yours in a border or a perennial garden, a few of the early blooming perennials will give added color. Some of these are: lavender blue phlox, which grows about fifteen inches tall. Phlox ox devarecota is the correct name. This is not the well known ground phlox. There is also the paleomonium or Jacobs ladder, a really blue flower which grows to approximately ten inches in height.

Still another is Neitensia, or Virginia blue bell. This is a blue flower with pinkish hue. For a white perennial, use Arobis, or rock cress, it is a small white flower which grows in masses of snowy blooms. These small white flowers are so numerous that when a plant is in bloom, no foliage is visible. Of course there is also the Alyssum or Basket of gold which is the most popular of the early flowering perennials. The Alyssum combines very well with bulb plantings. Another good reason for using perennials with bulbs is that they hide the withering foliage later in the season.

Another pretty effect may be attained by planting thyme in your rock garden, between stepping stones or around the base of the bird bath. You may also plant Crocus bulbs among the thyme as thyme is a ground plant and the crocus will grow up through it making a lovely effect.

If you are fortunate enough to have a clump of white birch trees, a planting of narcissi, in staggered formation among them makes a striking picture. If you are planning to plant lillies, prepare the ground now and cover it with a mulch to keep it in working condition. This must be done as lilly bulbs arrive on the market late and the ground is usually frozen.

For color in your home, you may put up some of the smaller clumps of "mums" you will preserve some of the fall color long after a frost has taken your outdoor flowers. If the indoor "mums" are watered regularly, they will last for quite a few weeks.

After bringing in the plants which have been in the garden all summer, some of them need time, a rest period to get used to the change. One of these plants is the azalea. Keep it cool, and in plenty of light. Go easy on the water for about a month. After the first month, move it into a warmer location and spray the leaves often with water to increase the humidity and to keep the plant free from the red spider.

If you have bought new plants lately, at the florist, fairs or five and ten, and they look pale or sickly, this is because they too, must get used to the change. Some of these plants are in small pots or containers to keep the cost down and when they are brought into the warm dry rooms, the soil dries out quickly. Repot them into larger pots, this allows for more space for soil and water. Do not fill the pot right to the brim with earth as if you do, there will be no room for water.

Some folks feel that plastic or glazed pots are not satisfactory, but experiments have proven that they are. One must watch when watering as these pots have no holes in the bottom for drainage. You must not water too much at one time so that the water is standing, or the earth is mud. New clay pots should be washed well even soaked for a week before using, as they seem to get an alkali in the process of manufacturing and this is injurious to the plant roots. Old pots should be well washed also to remove clay and scum. This will help to keep any disease, fungus or insects from spreading to the plant.

These pests will come to life as soon as they get in where it is warm and where they have nice green plants to attack. All greenhouse operators sterilize their pots as well as the soil they use.

Some of you who have children probably have trouble keeping them away from your choice plants. This is especially difficult with pre-schoolers. One method of coping with this problem is to give the child a plant of his own. Simply cut off the top of a carrot, place it in a saucer with water and keep it in a sunny window. This will grow into a lovely, bushy fern. Allow the child to take care of it, supplying it with water. This will interest the child and keep him or her away from your plants.

You may also use a turnip top in the summer. I know this plan will work as I have seen it work during my experience with my grandchildren.

Safety Tip: During the fall you're likely to find slow-moving farm vehicles on the highway - especially at sundown, says the Triple-A. These vehicles, returning from the fields, cannot maneuver easily; yet they have as much right to the highway as you do. Be on the alert for farm implements, wagons, truck and horse drawn vehicles and share the highway with them.

"I think the right to work in our country is just as sacred as the right to vote and the right to a jury trial. I don't believe any organization in our country should be vested with the right and the power to say to any American: 'You shall not work unless you join my organization!'"

VICE PRESIDENT OF SOUTHERN UNION COLLEGE TO SPEAK AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

As a Westerner working in the Deep South, Douglas Wasson, vice president of the Southern Union College, Wadley, Alabama, will bring a first hand report on the development of Southern Union, and of higher education in the South, when he speaks to the people of the Wilmington Congregational Church at both services next Sunday morning.

Wasson embarked upon his ministerial career at sixteen years of age when he was pastor of three rural churches near the Canadian border in North Dakota. He was educated at Jamestown College, North Dakota State Normal and Industrial College, Western Reserve University (A.B.) and Oberlin College (B.D.).

He served pastorates in the Dakotas and Ohio; worked as volunteer chaplain of the South Dakota State Training school; officer in the national Methodist youth program and was assistant to the superintendent of a mission in the Great Smokies. In the summer of 1955 and 1956, he was a member of the team from the National Council of Churches, providing a Christian ministry at Grand Canyon National Park.

At Southern Union, Wasson began his work in September 1955 as instructor of history and director of public relations. By March 1956, his work was expanded to include directorships of the admissions office.

In August 1956, he was elected acting president of the college and still serving in this capacity in addition to the vice presidency.

Southern Union College is a two year coeducational institution offering basic liberal arts education at a remarkably low cost, $65 a month for resident students and $30 a month for non-resident students. It is affiliated with the Congregational Christian Churches of America.

Wasson is a member of the American College Public Relations Association, the Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admission Officers; the Council of the Southern Mountains, Inc., and the Kiwanis International. He is also chairman of the Dixie Junior College Athletic Conference.

"TECH'S SUMMER CAMP IN MAINE SOLD

Massachusetts Institute of Technology alumni, particularly those who received part of their training at "Tech's big summer camp established in Marion, Washington County, Maine, will be interested in the property's recent transfer to a prominent Connecticut business man and sportsman. Captain George F. Piper of Bristol, in a sale negotiated by R.C. Emery, well-known Eastport, (Maine) real estate broker.

The camp has been closed during the past three years due to lack of demand for the type of instruction given there. It was designed to accommodate 100 students, their instructors and the necessary service staff, and set off by itself, nearly five miles from U.S. Route One. It formed a separate community, perfectly adapted to promote study & close association between students and teachers. Many observers considered it the finest summer school of its type in the entire country.

The property is an extensive one, comprising some 350 acres of forest and open land lying on the east side of Gardner's Lake on which it has a frontage of three and a half miles, a third of which is in good beaches, and a stand of buildings erected, and maintained in practically new condition, by Tech during the many summers when it was filled with young engineers from every section of the United States and from many foreign countries.

Profiles in Courage—I

Feelings of Inadequacy, Failure Haunted John Quincy Adams' Life

Congress is writing its record of party conflict and legislation. From these sessions, some Congressmen will emerge with popular acclaim, others with disdain. But only history can give the final judgment—as history itself shows. Beginning here is a series of "Profiles in Courage"—the records of men in political life who, for the sake of what they believed to be right, sacrificed a great deal: party, popularity, even their careers. The author is Sen. John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), 38-year-old writer and newspaperman and a member of Congress since 1946. The articles are condensed from Sen. Kennedy's book, "Profiles in Courage," published by Harper and Brothers.

By SEN. JOHN F. KENNEDY
From the book "Profiles in Courage," Copyright (C) 1955-1956, by John F. Kennedy. Published by Harpers.

The young Senator from Massachusetts stirred restlessly in his chair as the debate droned on.

The Senate chamber fairly echoed with the shouting of his Massachusetts colleague, Sen. Pickens, who was denouncing President Jefferson's trade embargo of 1807 for what seemed like the hundredth time.

Kennedy Outside, a dreary January rain had bogged the village of Washington into a sea of mud. Sorting the mail which lay in disarray on his desk, John Quincy Adams found his eye caught by an anonymous letter:

"Lucifer, son of the morning, how thou hast fallen! We hope not irrecoverably. O Adams, remember who thou art. Return to Massachusetts! Return to thy country. Assist not in its destruction! Consider the consequences. Awake—arouse in time.—A Federalist."

A Federalist! Adams mused bitterly over the word. Was he not the son of John Adams, the last Federalist President? Had he not served a Federalist administration in the diplomatic service abroad? Had he not been elected as a Federalist to the Massachusetts Legislature and then to the United States Senate? Now, simply because he had placed national interest before party and section, the Federalists had deserted him.

Lover of Liberty

John Quincy Adams was one of the great representatives of that extraordinary breed who have left a memorable imprint upon our government and our way of life. Harsh and intractable, like the rocky New England countryside, he believed that man was made in the image of God, and thus was equal to the extraordinary demands of self-ardent hunter and fisherman, will use the establishment and its fine facilities as a commercial hunting camp in the fall, as a fishing camp in the spring and as a boys and girls camp or recreation center in the summer. While he has lived in Connecticut since going there from Madison, Maine, as a youth, his heart has always been with the lakes, streams and forests of his native state, and he is thoroughly at home with his new enterprise. Last spring, he disposed of his string of service stations in Connecticut and before he engaged in that business he had served for nearly seven years in the U.S. Air Force.

The people of Washington County, sometimes called "The Sunrise County of the U.S.A." because it is farthest east in this country, have expressed keen satisfaction government. The Puritan loved liberty and the law.

Long before these discouraging months in the Senate, when his mail was filled with abuse, he had noted in his diary the dangers that confronted a Puritan entering politics: "I feel strong temptation to plunge into political controversy, but... a politician in this country must be the man of a party. I would fain be the man of my whole country."

Few, if any, Americans have been born with the advantages of John Quincy Adams: a famous name; a brilliant father who labored unceasingly to develop his son's talents; an extraordinary mother. Yet he was gnawed constantly by a sense of inadequacy, of failure. He wrote his father at age 9:

"Mamma has a troublesome task to keep me a studying. I own I am ashamed of myself."

Again, 36 years later, having served as U. S. Senator, Harvard professor, and American minister to major European powers, he could write sadly in his diary:

"Two-thirds of a long life have passed, and I have done nothing to distinguish it by usefulness to my country and to mankind."

"... Succession of Disappointments"

And finally, at age 70, having distinguished himself as Secretary of State, an independent President and an eloquent member of Congress, he was to record somberly that his "whole life has been a succession of disappointments. I can scarcely recollect a single instance of success in anything that I ever undertook."

His frustrations and defeats in political office—as Senator and President—were the inevitable result of his intransigence in ignoring the political facts of life.

It was not unnatural that John Quincy, returning to Boston after diplomatic service upon his father's defeat for President by Thomas Jefferson, should become active in his father's Federalist party. But no sooner had the young ex-diplomat been elected to the Massachusetts Legislature than he demonstrated his audacious disdain for narrow partisanship. Without consulting his senior colleagues he proposed that the Jeffersonian party be given proportional representation on the governor's council.

In subsequently selecting young Adams for the Senate, his colleagues in the state Legislature may have assumed that the honor would help impress upon him his obligations to his party.

Arriving in Washington, Adams promptly aroused a storm of controversy by becoming the only Federalist to support Jefferson's Louisiana Purchase. He regarded this remarkable feat, since it excluded Napoleon from our boundaries while enriching our nation, as far more important than the outraged astonishment of his party colleagues. This was regarded by his Federalist friends as the final proof of perfidy.

With stubborn intellectual independence, Adams regarded every public measure that came before him, a fellow Senator observed, as though it were an abstract proposition from Euclid, unfettered by consideration of political appeal.

He denied the duty of elected representatives "to be palsied by the will of their constituents"; he refused to become what he termed a "patriot by profession." His guiding star was the principle of Puritan statesmanship his father had laid down many years before: "The magistrate is the servant not of his own desires, not even of the people, but of his God."

In 1807 the split between party and Senator became irreparable. Adams was denounced by the great majority of his constituents as well as the party chiefs. The final break, naturally enough, concerned the nation's foreign policy.

Our relations with Great Britain were worsening. Our ships were being seized, the cargoes confiscated, seamen "impressed" into the King's navy. Adams' patriotic instincts were aroused when the very Federalist merchants whose ships were being attacked decided that appeasement was the best answer to their problems.

Condemned British

With undisguised contempt, Adams in 1806 successfully introduced, over Federalist opposition, a series of resolutions condemning British aggression upon American ships.

In the summer of 1807, the American frigate Chesapeake was fired upon off the Virginia Capes by the British man-of-war, Leopard. Adams was convinced the time for forceful action had come. He pleaded with Federalist officials to call a protest meeting in Boston. Turned down, he attended a Republican party meeting and helped draft a fighting resolution pledging support to the President.

Now the Federalists, outraged, stated publicly that Adams should "have his head taken off for apostasy... and should no longer be considered as having any communion with the party."

When, on Sept. 18, 1807, Jefferson called for an embargo in retaliation against the British—a measure apparently ruinous to Massachusetts—Adams was chairman of the committee which reported out the bill. "This measure will cost you and me our seats," young Adams remarked to a colleague, "but private interest must not be put in opposition to the public good."

His words were unerringly prophetic. In Massachusetts, a substantial proportion of America's merchant fleet and practically all the shipbuilding and fishing industries were idled. Bankruptcy and migration from the territory became common. The Federalists insisted the embargo was an attempt by Jefferson to ruin New England. Talk of New England seceding became commonplace.

Adams' social circles in Boston turned against him. "I would not sit at the same table with that renegade," remarked a leading citizen. A leading Federalist wrote with glee, "He walks into State Street at the usual hour but seems totally unknown."

Forced to Resign

The Federalist Legislature convened in May, 1808, with—as the Massachusetts Republican governor wrote—but one "principal object—the political and even the personal destruction of John Quincy Adams." Both houses immediately elected Adams' successor to the Senate—nine months prior to the expiration of his term. Adams resigned his seat. It was "out of the question," he wrote, to hold his seat "without exercising the most perfect freedom of agency, under the sole and exclusive control of my own sense of right."

"I will only add that, far from regretting any one of those acts for which I have suffered, I would do them over again... at the hazard of ten times as much slander, unpopularity and displacement."

Adams' star was to rise again—but with this incident he etched his profile in courage. And he never abandoned his courage of conscience. Soon after his retirement from the White House in 1829, he was asked by the voters of Plymouth district to represent them in Congress. He agreed only if he could pursue a course independent of the party and voters.

He was overwhelmingly elected, and devoted his prestige and energies to the struggle against slavery. To be returned on this independent basis to the Congress from which he had departed so ignominiously 22 years earlier was deeply moving for Adams.

"I am a member-elect of the 22nd Congress," he recorded in his diary. "No election or appointment conferred upon me ever gave me so much pleasure. My election as President of the United States was not half so gratifying to my inmost soul."

NEXT: Webster, the orator.

W. F. A. HI-LITES

The past week has been Fire Prevention Week and has seen the usual activities here in this town and all other towns and cities in the State of Massachusetts. Fire drills have been conducted in all the schools and safety and precaution in and around the home has been the theme during Fire Prevention Week. Now is a good time to clean out those attics and basements of all the possible hazards that may exist and that have a possible fire danger.

Most all of the oil companies are offering a deal on cleaning, adjusting and regulating your home heating units and in my opinion it is a very worthy deal for one can never know when the unit may be out of kilter and cause grief to befall us. Permits are required by law on the storage of all oils and if by chance you don't have one in your name you can acquire one by the simple means of applying for it at the station. While on the subject of permits I might also mention that permits are required for all open air fires and that they may also be acquired by the same simple operation of picking up your telephone and calling us on the phone OLiver 8-3346, here at the station.

May I also ask you to bear in mind that Halloween is almost upon us and ask you to stress upon your children, both young and old, the danger of turning in a false alarm or the tampering with of hydrants and other town properties. It may hinder this dept. in answering a legitimate alarm and cause grief to come to some one, who knows, it may be your own. Therefore, I can't stress enough this request, please explain this to your children. As a whole, the children of the town are very good, but as always, there seems to be a select few that don't take the other fellow into consideration, in any shape or form and we can thank the Lord that they are in a minority.

here in our town. Let me also make a statement that those that are caught doing any of the above mentioned things will find themselves in a very bad situation and they will be punished to the full extent of the law.

The drawing booklet that has been such a success for the last three years is under way again and the committee has stated that it will be bigger and better this year and are in hopes of getting rid of more books than ever, the prizes are rolling in very good. The monies raised from the sale of this booklet are, as you know, used for our charity Xmas work here within the confines of our town for needy families. Charlie Ellis heads the committee with a very good committee group behind him.

One other subject I would like to bring forth at this time is the one of canes and crutches. As you may not know, this dept. has had quite a few sets of both crutches and canes here at the station for the use of any person requiring such an aid within the town and the point behind this is the fact that some, in fact quite a few sets of the crutches have not been returned, so for those of you that have had the convenience of the use of them would you please try to get them back to us as soon as possible in order that we may loan them out to others that may need them. Of course if they are still in use, we want you to keep them until the need for them is over, then return them and we would be most grateful to you.

We have had a few small brush fires this past week but nothing out of the ordinary. This is the time of year when we come into our brush season and it is one of the reasons that we try to stress the point of using caution at all times in and around the woodlands. Well, I guess, I've said enough for this week so I will close until I see you in this column next week.

Wilmington Democrats To Attend Banquet

A large delegation of guests from Wilmington will assemble on Nov. 16 at the Commonwealth Armory in Boston, at what may be the largest banquet in the United States. The Armory will easily seat 5000.

A salute to Senator John Kennedy and Congressman John McCormack is a feature of the affair. Speaker of the evening will be Senator John O. Pastor of R.I. Governor Furcolo and former governor Paul A. Dever will add their words of tribute to those two national figures during the evening speaking program.

Chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic Committee John M. Lynch is in charge of arrangements for the evening.

LAST HORSE SHOW OF SEASON SATURDAY

The Wilmington Rotary Horse Show will be held at Rotary Park, at the rear of Masonic Hall, on Saturday, Oct. 19, starting at 10:00 a.m. In case of rain the show will be held the following Saturday, Oct. 26.

It is planned to make this a gala event. 24 classes will be entered, consisting of English and Western. There will be pony driving and Showing, and also jump classes. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded in each class.

This will be the last event of this kind this season, and it is expected that many competitors from many areas will be on hand.

Wilmington contestants have fared very well in the past, and it is hoped that they will continue to do so.

The first friction matches in the United States were made in Chicopee, Massachusetts, according to the Massachusetts Department of Commerce.

D. A. V. HI - LITES

The launching of the Russian earth Satellite and reports of their progress in intercontinental ballistic missiles points up the importance of our being ready for anything. It is our belief that the false economy of our defense dept. and the intense rivalry between the branches of the service should come to an end.

In their place should come a renewed spirit of preparedness and cooperation, in order to prevent another great holocaust of war. We of the D.A.V. are always looking to increase our membership, but another great war is definitely not the way we would propose to do so.

The defense dept. would do well to gear their economy to saving lives instead of dollars.

Commander Simpson is still hopeful that all members will try to bring in at least one new member to the chapter this year. The future success of chapter 106 depends greatly on its membership growth. Progress towards the ultimate aim of larger and more modern quarters can only be achieved through the active participation of more and more new and old members alike in the activities of the chapter. We also hope that more members will attend the business meetings and take part in the plans for the coming holiday season.

Don't forget the Halloween Social on Oct. 25. Every ghoul who is anybody will be there. Costumes will not be required, but bring your weirdest face.

Plans are being formulated for the purpose of allying the D.A.V. with the fund raising drive to aid the foundation for Retarded Children. We will have more information on this at a later date.

"Bring in a new member"

Girl Sports:
The field hockey game against Woburn was rained out last Tuesday, but Oct. 15, they will play Methuen. They have never played this team before, but they hope to bring home a victory. The team is just as strong as ever, and the spirit is high among the girls.

The schedule of the games is as follows:
Oct. 21, at Bedford - Oct. 24 - at Woburn - Oct. 29 - at Methuen - Oct. 31 at Andover - Nov. 5, Bedford Nov. 7 - at No. Andover.

The wood skelton of a house gives shape, strength and stability to the structure. Wood itself is strong and the various parts can be securely fastened together to give strength in all directions. This type of framework is resilient under the loads imposed by severe winds or earthquakes.

Be alert to detect any unusual actions of a pedestrian, warns the Institute for Safer Living. He may have been drinking and many weave right into the path of your car without seeing you. Nearly 1,400 drinking pedestrians were killed by automobiles last year.

Do you think that you are safe while driving 40 to 50 miles per hour on the open highway? Not necessarily, says the Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co. Studies of accident records indicate that nearly 25 per cent of all rural traffic deaths occur in this speed bracket.

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

Everybody talks about taxes. And, in doing so, practically everybody talks about direct, visible taxes, such as those on income and property. That's natural enough, for we can actually see and feel the inroads those taxes make. They come out of pocket, or are withheld from our pay checks, or are a specified part of mortgage installments.

But the tax problem and the tax burden don't end with these taxes—not by a long shot. Hidden or indirect taxes, which enter in the cost of everything, are a huge item of expense to the American people. As a matter of fact, at many income levels they are a much larger item than direct taxes.

Bem Price, an Associated Press Newsfeatures writer, has come up with an interesting account of what is involved. As examples, he takes a cheap commodity and an expensive one—a loaf of bread and an automobile. Actually, he says, "Nobody has ever managed to count the taxes included in the final price of them." It's an impossible job—... for in the case of bread alone you would have to trace back to taxes on the machines that made the machines that made the machinery that planted and harvested the tax-supported wheat, grown on tax-paid land by an income tax-paying farmer."

The same problem arises in the case of the car. However, there are certain taxes that can be accurately totaled up. Mr. Price takes a car carrying a Michigan price of $2,000. The figurative tax is $559.83, of which $488.81 is hidden so far as the purchaser is concerned. Included are estimated taxes on materials and parts, estimated income and other taxes paid by the manufacturer, similar taxes paid by the dealer, and so on. If the car is bought at a distant point instead of Michigan, the hidden transportation tax adds further to the cost.

Going back to bread, Mr. Price quotes the Tax Foundation as counting 151 identifiable taxes which are passed along to the consumer. An authoritative estimate holds that taxes take about $1 for every $5 spent on food. Searchers have run down 116 taxes on a man's suit, 600 on a house and 150 on a woman's hat.

Dickson J. Preston of the Scripps-Howard staff also has produced an interesting piece on hidden taxes. He says that about 20 per cent of all you spend is absorbed by taxes, and in the case of many items the proportion is much higher—nearly nine-tenths of the price of a bottle of whisky, for instance. And he quotes another Tax Foundation report, concerning a man earning $4,500 a year. This man pays a total federal, state and local tax bill of $1,393. The visible part of that is only $387. The invisible part is $1,006.

The moral is found in Bem Price's last paragraph: "The man who wrote that song about the best things in life being free had better have another look. He might change his tune."

Nearly all schools built today are one-story-about four out of five for the nation as a whole. West of the Mississippi river, 96 per cent are one-story. Wood frame construction is often used for today's schools because the wood school is economical, attractive and adaptable to changing educational patterns, according to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

American Lumberman magazine reports the development of a new trend in used paneling. Last year, builders and home owners were using wood panel one or two walls of a room. Now, the vogue is to panel all four walls, according to trade journal. "New homes with wood paneling have a luxury touch and sell better in today's competitive market," the magazine points out.

THE LIONS ROAR

Another week has rolled around and this is the week that I have been raving about in this column for so long. This is the week of the Lions Ball over at the Andover Country Club. It was reported at the last weeks meeting that there are still some tickets available and can be purchased at the Country Style Donut Shop in the Square or from any Lion member that you may know. It promises to be a grand affair and the committee has put a lot of time into it to see that it will be just that. The club has been enlarged this past year and of course the band chosen to play for your dancing pleasure is none other than the ever popular Jack Hennessey Group that has played for you before. The refreshments for the buffet have been arranged for and all details for a grand time have been taken care of by the ball committee, so, what say? For the Ball of your Life, why not join us on Friday night the 18th over in Andover and you can be sure that you will meet all your friends there.

Last weeks meeting was a very enjoyable one and the

The meeting was only nine men short of having a 100 per-cent attendance. This next one is an important one, so what say men. Let's try to make it a perfect one and at the same time give our Ball Committee a hand by getting all returns in at this time.

BURGLAR ALARM SAVES DAY AT SHAMROCK

Although the loss has not yet been estimated, police have stated that it would have been much greater had it not been for the burglar alarm at the Shamrock Drive In.

Last Tuesday, at 2:15 a.m. robbers drilled through the rear of the Shamrock building and thus gained entrance through a rear door. They passed through part of the building headed for a "more expensive take". However, the alarm was at the door of a second room. Upon passing through it, the burglars set off the alarm which was heard by Mr. Rocco across the street. Mr. Rocco alerted police and heavy loss was avoided.

Police Chief, Paul Lynch has stated that it is not possible, to give enough credit to the automatic burglar alarm and highly recommends the installation of such alarms in business establishments.
